Observations...

By the Editor

We want to extend our thanks to Col. Birdsong, Mississippi's Commissioner of Public Safety, for coming to the aid of the people of Hancock County, in removing the Free Zoo menace from our midst. We understand, that without much fanfare, the Highway Patrolmen gave instructions to the outfit to move on, and move on they did. We don't think it is right for the State boys to come in and supercede the local authorities, but circumstances were really a necessity in this case. Good work, Colonel.

The Parent Teachers Association really deserves the compliments and congratulations of our entire populace for the splendid carnival parade staged Mardi Gras Day, and, too, we must not overlook the participants. The parade has grown better and better each year and is a credit to Bay St. Louis. Some of the floats would have been a credit to larger carnival organizations. It is to be hoped that the spirit of cooperation now existing in this project will continue on, and grow larger, making this yearly affair a must.

Have you taken time out to check your registration? Are you interested in knowing whether you will be able to vote in the primary election to be held August 7, 1951, at which time your officers from the Constable to Governor will be elected? If you are, you had better check and see if you are registered. You know, the County ordered a new registration, and it was necessary for you to re-register in order to be a qualified voter. It will pay you to go to the clerk's office at the courthouse and see for certain that you are re-registered. In order to be qualified to vote in the August Primaries, you must be registered before July 6, 1951.

The P. M. A. election was held as scheduled Tuesday, January 30, and we have heard from outside sources the results of the election; however, we have been asked not to publish any results until such time as it has been approved and released by the State Production and Marketing Committee. We are hopeful of being able to give you the results of the election in our next issue.

We are just being a bit curious when we ask why the Mayor of the City of Bay St. Louis greeted the Queen of the Carnival Parade at the Courthouse instead of at the City Hall. In times past, with the exception of the last two years, this has always taken place at the City Hall. As the affair is sponsored by the Parent Teachers Association of the Central School, it does seem that the City Hall would have been the appropriate place, particularly with the Mayor officiating.

Edward Templet Killed As Tractor Overtakes Tues.

Edward R. Templet was killed Tuesday, February 6, at noon, when a tractor he was driving turned over pinning him under it. He was killed almost instantly.

Mr. Templet was pulling a tree off some property on the Northeast side of Joe's Bayou when the tractor, which was carrying a heavy load, rared up and overturned.

Alfred Cospelich said he reached Mr. Templet within five minutes after the accident, and with the assistance of other men, lifted it off the injured man. He died just as the tractor was removed. They were clearing the jobness property.

Justice of the Peace M. D. Rutherford, acting coroner, empaneled a jury which returned verdict of accidental death. James J. Favre, Alfred Favre, Frank B. Kline, Edward Santelelli, J. Alfred Cospelich and Christian Netto composed the jury. Sheriff B. D. Johnson and Constable Gerald V. Price investigated the accident.

Mr. Templet, who came to Bay St. Louis from Houma, Louisiana, ten years ago, made his home with his uncle, the late Gus Templet, and aunt, Mrs. Rosa Templet. The body was taken to the Hazzard Funeral Home and later shipped to Houma for interment. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lucy Landry of Houma, and a brother, Hypolite Templet, of Tacoma, Washington.

Now that your poll taxes are paid, are you sure that your registration is in order? Check it. Be positive.

Mrs. P. E. Porter, Jr. and N. L. Carter Reign Over Carnival Ball

Mrs. P. E. Porter, Jr., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Weston of Bay St. Louis, and N. L. Carter of Bay St. Louis and New Orleans, reigned as king and queen of the eighteenth Carnival ball at St. Joseph Academy Friday night, February 2.

"ALICE IN WONDERLAND" The theme of the ball "Through a Looking Glass," from Alice in Wonderland, was depicted in a tableau stage setting in keeping with the Alice in Wonderland period. Alice, Cheryl Duomo, stepped through the looking glass and was guided through her wanderings and dance by the white queen, Marie Saucier, and red queen, Helen Wolfe.

Following the tableau, the dukes took their places on the floor to await the maids who, entering from the rear of the stage, were escorted by members of the floor committee. They formed an aisle through which the queen passed as she was escorted to the king by Edouard C. Carriere, chairman of the floor committee.

THE QUEEN

The queen was radiant in a dress of white brocade studded with rhinestones and worn over white satin. The dress, fashioned with a graceful skirt, had a full length satin panel in front, embroidered in rhinestones which gave the dress a redingote effect. The bodice was tight fitted. Her mantle was of American Beauty satin trimmed in white ermine and rhinestones designs; it was finished with a Medici collar of rhinestones. Her scepter and crown were of rhinestones intermingled with sapphires. She carried a round bouquet of butterfly orchids and lilies of the valley, surrounded with a tulle ruching and tied with silver ribbon. Robert Hamilton, Jr. and Don McCulloch, Jr., were train-bearers.

The maids all wore dresses of white tulle, lace and satin, fashioned with bouffant skirts and tight bodices. They carried bouquets of varicolored carnations on a tulle base.

Miss Mary diBenedetto and Dr. John L. Griffin, king and queen of 1950, preceded the maids and dukes to the stage.

March of Dimes Drive Extended

The local March of Dimes drive has been extended for 12 days, Mrs. Theo Tudury, Hancock County drive chairman, announced.

Dr. Felix J. Underwood, state chairman, stated that "Unusually bad weather which struck our state last week has forced a delay in winding up the March of Dimes Drive." The drive was scheduled to end January 30.

Dr. Underwood appealed to campaign workers to continue their efforts until all phases of the Drive have been successfully concluded.

The March of Dimes benefit bingo game scheduled last week was postponed until Sunday, February 11, because of the weather. The game, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, will be held at 2:30 p. m. at the K. C. Hall.

CANNOT AFFORD INTERFERENCE

"We cannot afford to let anything interfere with the success of the March of Dimes," Dr. Underwood stated in his announcement of the extension of the Drive. "Thousands already crippled from polio are looking to us for continuing treatment. We know, too, that many others will be stricken before this year ends."

Anyone who has not sent in a contribution, Mrs. Tudury stated, will have time to do so with the twelve day extension. Everyone is urged to contribute to this worthy cause.

Will Our Modern Nero Fiddle On?

The postmaster gave us a call this morning stating that the majority of our papers going to other cities could not be accepted for mailing because of the embargo brought about by the strike of the railroad men.

Of course, we are sorry that this week's Echo will be a little late getting to our readers; nevertheless, they are being addressed and will be held for delivery until the embargo is lifted. The delivery of our paper is beyond the point. Many of our boys are being slaughtered on the battlefields of Korea, and there are probably many vital materials and equipment, so necessary for them, being held up because labor and management of the railroads have not been able to settle their differences.

Perhaps, the claims of the railmen are justified, and certainly with the rapid and continued rise in food prices, we can see the need for higher wages. But then, we can see the side of the management; certainly it is hard to conceive that any group of individuals would have so little patriotism as to strike and tie up the facilities of transportation at a time like this. But what can we expect, when the leadership of our country lacks the courage to act in order to avert such action by the laboring men.

The administration has toyed around with the problem of price controls, and the action they have taken appears more like child's play. The idea of pegging prices at the highest peak. Such tactics invites action by the wage earner to seek an increase. The delay in stabilizing prices has decreased the value of the purchasing power of the dollar, particularly for food stuff, perhaps over 25 per cent. It has reached a point where the average wage earner has had to cut his household budget to dire necessities.

We wonder where it will end? The seed of communism will grow much faster with hungry stomachs and taxes amounting to confiscation.

Will our modern Nero continue to fiddle?

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

By HOWARD SIMMONS

SOIL TESTING

Increased costs of farm production make it especially important to save wherever possible, and saving often results when fertilizer is bought according to the recommendations from a soil test. This testing is also a key to the higher yields needed in the defense effort.

It is late, but not too late, to have soil tested for the approaching crop season. (The laboratory at State College is trying to test samples within two weeks after they are received.)

The first time they had their soil tested, some farmers found that they were using more than enough of one or more kinds of plant food, but not enough of another for maximum cotton, corn or other crop yields.

With all-around good management, each dollar spent for fertilizer should return five dollars, or more.

See the county agent for soil sampling containers and instructions.

RAT CONTROL

A really effective rat control program for the community or county can be conducted using Warfarin, a relatively safe rodenticide recently released by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Cost per farm is low.

Winter months are among the best for rat and control campaigns, although they pay off any time on poultry farms.

PLANNED DAIRYING

Dairymen will find it pays to do some planning now before the rush of crop season. For example, labor will be shorter and more expensive this year, so organize operations to conserve it wherever possible.

Try to save more high quality home-grown hay and silage. Provide minerals for the herd everyday of the year, placing a covered mineral box in the pasture or feeding shed.

Adequate drinking water is important, as a milk in 88 percent water. Drinking water should be clean, fresh, plentiful and convenient. If the source is a pond, it should be fenced, and a concrete trough with float valve placed below the dam.

Cows on many farms will freshen between now and warm weather. Provide a clean, comfortable, quiet and roomy place indoors where calving may take place. Disinfect the quarters each time before using and put down a generous supply of bedding.

Calves should have individual stalls or pens with arrangement for sunshine and fresh air. Spoiled udders on dairy cows often result from letting calves run together.

In a grade herd, cows are safer without horns. Dehorning the herd before fly season is desirable.

Dehorn calves when they are six to 10 days. Use an electric dehorner, caustic potash or other preparation on calves, following instructions of the county agent.

Plan the breeding date for each female of breeding age. Record date each is bred, also the expected calving date. Then record the date of birth and the sex of each calf.

Conserve and utilize wisely the manure produced. Storage space or spreading facilities may be needed.

Prune Plants Damaged By Cold

State College, Miss. — Plants which have suffered cold damage should be pruned as soon as the damage is apparent, according to Henry J. Smith, assistant Agricultural Extension Service horticulturist.

Evergreen plants such as Holly, Pine, Spruce, Laurel, and Fir usually are injured by sudden changes in temperature. In the earliest stages, winter injury on broad-leaf evergreens is evident as a "scorching" of the leaves at the tips. On narrow-leaf evergreens the needles are browned entirely. The twigs are brittle and snap readily when bent.

Mr. Smith stressed the importance of removing dead wood from the plant. Large limbs which have been broken by ice and wind should be pruned near the main trunk of the tree. The limbs should be cut with no nub left. Cracked or split branches should be removed soon after the damage is apparent.

Small shrubs may be cut back considerably if they are winter-damaged, as new growth will appear from the roots in almost all cases. All wounds made in pruning should be coated with linseed oil or shellac to prevent the entry of insects and diseases.

Shrubs such as Forsythia, Lilac, Viburnum, Thunbergia and Vanhouttei Spirea, Deutzia, Japanese Flowering Quince, and Mock Orange bear their blooms on last year's wood. If these shrubs have suffered severe winter damage, there is little chance that they will produce blooms this spring and summer. It is best to prune these severely, and to encourage a good growth after warm weather arrives.

Althea, Butterfly Bush, Crepe Myrtle, Anthony Waterer Spirea, and Highbush Cranberry are among the shrubs which bloom on this year's wood. It is possible to prune this group after severe winter damage and still have flowers from them later in the spring and summer.

Roses which have been killed back to the ground will be weakened due to the loss of stored food. If the plant is of a vigorous variety, it will make sufficient growth during the summer to produce blooms even if it is killed back to the ground at this time.

DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENTS PLAY

Mrs. J. T. Broadus presented the Junior-Senior Bay High Dramatic Club at the assembly period in the school auditorium Thursday, February 1, in a one-act play entitled, "Highest Bidder Gets a Date."

The scene of the play was laid in a dormitory room of a girls' college in the late evening.

The girls are all excited because West Point Cadets have descended upon the town. However, it seems that each of the four boys has met one of the girls and asked her to get dates for all of his friends, which would mean four girls to one man. Therefore the girls are in no forgiving mood when the boys appear under the window; but a peace offering of bananas paves the way to friendly relations and the boys clamor in.

The party is interrupted by the house mother. As the play ends, the girls are surprised to discover that "Snuffy," the plain and studious one of the lot, is engaged to the most handsome of the cadets.

Ann Herbert was stage manager, and the play was a credit to the cast and those who assisted in directing the play.

—Mr. and Mrs. Horace Farr, Bernard Farr, Toby Scafield and Mrs. Sam Noto attended the funeral of Norman Carnovale in Biloxi Saturday.

PARTNERS IN MISSISSIPPI'S PROGRESS

Lithograph by Mildred Wolfe, Mississippi artist

Like Tom and "Huck"

Mississippians and Southern Bell in Mississippi have a lot in common because, like Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, progress and the telephone are famous partners.

And Mississippi has been progressing! Just look at the figures: In 1945 the cash income of Mississippi farmers was only 306 million dollars; last year it was nearly 635 million dollars—an increase of 107 percent! From an output of only 368 millions in 1945, the production of our mills and factories rose to 778 million dollars last year!

During these years Southern Bell has been matching Mississippi's progress with the greatest expansion program of its sixty-five years in the state. From the end of 1945 to the beginning of this year, we spent more than 45 million dollars for new telephone facilities in Mississippi—increasing the number of telephones in the state by 103,269. This brings the total number of Southern Bell subscribers in Mississippi to 219,145.

Today's demand for increased production and efficiency on the farm, in mill, or factory, calls for more telephones and so Southern Bell plans to continue to extend and improve its service in Mississippi at the rate of nearly a million dollars a month—or as rapidly as conditions permit.

Yes, Jim, that pipe line you are working on will transport natural gas to some of the 2,000 Gulf South industries which depend on United Gas for fuel. Many of those industries are now engaged in the production of material for the defense of free nations everywhere... and hundreds more will join them in the months to come. Securing a lasting peace for the world will be a big task, Jim. ## Hancock County Soil Conservation District Makes Annual Report for 1950

Hancock County Soil Conservation District is located in the extreme southern part of the State of Mississippi, bounded on the south by the Gulf of Mexico, on the east by Harrison County, on the north by Pearl River and the State of Louisiana.

Problem areas in Hancock County are divided by Jordan River, which traverses the County in a northerly to southeasterly direction through the center of the County, the land lying south of the river is low and flat, during the winter and early spring most of this land is covered with water. The land lying north of the river is rolling to hilly.

Our main problem south of Jordan River is drainage while the area north of the river presents an all together different problem; it is steep, soil erodes easily after the land is once cultivated. There is practically little farming south of Jordan River. Timber growing and cattle grazing are two percent uses for the land in this section. Since 1945 large tracts have been developed into improved pastures in this area. In the area north of Jordan River, the land is better drained and is adapted to farming. The principal crops are corn, soybeans, peas, oats, truck crops, pecan and tung nuts. Improved pastures are rapidly replacing row crops, due to the fact, farmers are developing dairying in this section of Hancock County.

The Hancock County Soil Conservation District was organized in 1945. Soil Conservation has progressed north and south of Jordan River. By the end of 1949, one hundred ninety-three farm plans were prepared for the farmers cooperating with the District. Total acreage under plan is 23,200. By the end of 1950, forty additional farm plans were prepared, bringing the total plans to 233 for the District, covering a total of 28,000 acres. Of this acreage about 1/4 of the land, some too steep for cultivation went into improved pastures, with the remainder going to crops and woodlands.

Farmers in the District increased their efforts in establishing more Soil Conservation practices on the farm since 1950.

Claude L. Johnson, Lakeshore Community excavated two miles of V-type drainage ditch to drain 250 acres of low, wet, flat land for fescue and ladino clover pasture. Thirty acres of pasture was completed last year. Four other farms excavated three miles of surface drainage W and V-type ditches on 443 acres of wet land for pasture improvement and more farmers have started ditches on their farms.

Pasture tours last spring convinced more farmers that pastures paid off. Here's what Fitzhugh Lee had to say about his pasture when his farm was visited by interested farmers of Hancock County. Mr. Lee has a dairy, sells his milk in Picayune. His story relates how he had started his dairy several years ago, buying feed for his cows and making very little money. Mr. Lee said, "I became interested in pastures and I had the Soil Conservation Service representative, Mr. Bishop, to come out to my farm and look over the situation. A farm soil survey was made of my farm, and soon afterwards a farm plan was made according to my land capabilities. The wet land was selected for my pasture development. Mr. Bishop told me what to do and I did it. I have 50 milk cows and they have doubled their milk since grazing in the pasture. I have kept books on it and it has netted me $1200.00 so far. I planted about 18 acres in pastures and I expect to follow my farm plan until the pasture is completed. I have learned how to grow better pastures and that is what the other farmers of Hancock County need. As a result of what the farmers saw on this pasture, tour and Mr. Lee's story about his experiences with his pasture, what it meant to him in dollars, 65 farmers established improved pastures on 648 acres in 1950. Many other farmers cooperating with the District can make similar statements on the progress made on their farms.

Many farmers are improving their woods. Pulpwood, poles and piling is at a premium price. Farmers are obtaining assistance from State Forest Service, pulpwood mill service personnel, Soil Conservation Service and other private foresters to mark timber for thinning and selective cutting. As the result of this service 15 farmers have thinned and selectively cut timber on 3004 acres of land in 1950.

Much progress has been made in the Soil Conservation work of this District but certain obstacles have prevented greater progress. Such as the lack of sufficient funds to purchase the necessary equipment and materials to carry on the soil conserving practices on the farms of cooperators of the District. More assistance is needed from banks and other financial institutions in lending funds to cooperators for making soil conserving improvements on their farms.

Farmers Home Administration is making loans to farmers. Production and Marketing Administration funds were cut approximately 10% for 1951 fiscal year.

High prices for fertilizer, seeds and farm equipment will have a tendency to slow down progress in the District. The war effort will no doubt create scarcities and make it more difficult to buy the farm equipment the farmer will have to use on the farms. One of the other obstacles we have with us in the county is the part-time farmers living on small farms. These farmers cultivate small acreages of row crops during the summer and work on public jobs most of the year. I believe the part-time farmers will join in the District program if some of their neighbors cooperating with the District will help get them interested in their farms, tell them about the Soil Conservation District program. As Soil Conservation practices are applied on these farms and yields begin to increase these farmers will show greater interest in their farms.

The seed and equipment dealers are not well distributed over the District thereby causing the farmers to drive to Gulfport or Picayune for these supplies.

The Commissioners believe the people of Hancock County are interested in Soil Conservation progress made in 1950, therefore, we are listing some of these accomplishments: Farm plans were made on 40 farms covering 4,747 acres; to date 233 farm plans have been made on 28,004 acres. The following conservation practices established: Pasture improvement 827 acres, to date 2,129 acres; terraces 27 miles, to date 232 miles; cover cropping 1,186 acres, to date 4,066 acres; kudzu 64 acres, to date 154 acres; sericea 26 acres, to date 264 acres; 700 acres of wet, flat land drained with 5 miles of drainage ditches being constructed, to date 1,571 acres drained with more than 17 miles of drain ditches completed, 3,000 acousting of selective cutting and thinning of thick stand of young trees, to date 4,926 acres have been treated. More than 8 miles of firebreaks were constructed in the woodland in 1950, to date 51 miles have been completed. Two hundred or more farmers actively participated in carrying out the establishment of soil conserving practices on their farms in the District this year.

Mr. Alfred Wittorf says, "I cannot do without the Soil Conservation District program. I quit experimenting on my farm five years ago. That was just before the District was organized. Now I have had a farm plan for four years and have almost completed the work called for in it. Those practices which I have established are definitely conserving my soil and have increased my income." George Spiers says, "The recommendations made in my District Soil Conservation plan fit well with my farm program and knowing the capabilities of my land helped me to put my land to better use. Fifteen acres of improved pasture and ten acres of kudzu have doubled my income when I sold my cattle last fall."

Paul Bounds of Flatport Community said, "Before the District planned my farm, I was in the dairy business, at that time, I had no improved pastures and had to buy practically all my feed for my milk cows. When pay day came around, I didn't have much money left after paying the feed bill. Now I have a farm plan and I have almost completed my plan and I am proud of it. I have more than doubled my money since my pastures are supporting my cows. I have established 27 acres of white dutch clover and dallis grass, and 14 acres of Kentucky 31 fescue. My feed bill is about 1/3 what it used to be. Hancock County will prosper if more farmers in the dairy business will plant more pastures." More than 65 farmers have planted 648 acres in fescue, bahia, white dutch, ladino clovers and crimson clover during 1950. Approximately 600 acres will be prepared and seeded to pasture in 1951.

Randolph Seal, Chairman of Hancock Production and Marketing Administration Committee said "I have observed farmers operating with a farm plan, which had terraced their fields, I noticed the run-off water, after a big rain, was not muddy as on some farms that was not properly terraced." "The Good Lord, intended all land for certain uses and with proper treatment we can maintain soil fertility. We need technical assistance. Several years ago the Extension Service recommended better blooded livestock but we had no pastures to maintain the cattle. Now, we are getting improved pastures and then we get better livestock. Before the Soil Conservation District was organized in this County, the farmers were not using Production and Marketing Administration funds available. Now, we have used all the funds for the past two years and asked for more. Due to Soil Conservation technical help practically all of Production and Marketing Administration money went to farmers cooperating with the District. Without the Soil Conservation District program we cannot progress."

We wish to express our appreciation to the following who have greatly assisted the District in carrying out a better Soil Conservation program in Hancock County.

Mr. Leo Seal, president of Hancock Bank became an affiliate member of the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts. Hancock County Bank presented a tree planter to the farmers of the District. A tree planting demonstration was sponsored by the Coordinating Council, 135 farmers, 60 G. I. Trainers, 15 business men attended the demonstration. Stewart Tractor Company of Picayune, furnished Ford tractor to pull the tree planter for the demonstration.

Bob Stewart, cooperators, Crain Creek Community, was a Production and Marketing Administration vendor, assisted other farmers cooperating with the District to build more than 20 miles of terraces. Stewart plans to help farmers to build terraces this year.

T. E. Kellar, Bay St. Louis, local contractor, constructed two miles of drainage ditch on Claude L. Johnson's farm. Mr. Johnson is draining the low wet flat land for improved pastures.

Hollis and Reese Stockstill, Carriere, Mississippi, assisted farmers by clearing, stumping and plowing 250 acres of new pastures, constructed 4 farm and ranch ponds and two fish ponds.

H. C. Weston, Sam Whitfield and Jack Lott, Bay St. Louis, local pulpwood dealers, assisted the farmers to thin 3,000 acres of dense pine stands during 1950. Farmers received approximately $200.00 from the thinning operations and at the same time improved the stand of timber in the woodland.

Production and Marketing Administration program has helped farmers in the District to purchase minerals, seeds, pine seedlings, kudzu, clovers and terrace construction. The Production and Marketing Administration program payments amounted to $16,297 during 1950. Majority of these payments applied to improved pastures.

Farmers Home Administration County Supervisor, Charles F. Burill, has been very active in the district program. Mr. Burill, requires all of his clients to have a farm plan with the District. This has helped the district to progress during 1950. Burill has made loans to 65 farmers amounting to $27,500, this amount was mostly expended on improved pastures and buying dairy cattle.

Howard F. Simmons, County Agent, assisted the District with educational meetings, farm tours, demonstrations and news releases during the past year. State Forest Service, Aide, C. L. Leonard has helped control the forest fires in the county.

The Hancock County Soil Conservation District program has changed my way of farming," says Fitzhugh Lee, one of our Commissioners. "Many farmers in Hancock County have changed from row crop to grass farming as I have done. My improved pastures have cut my dairy feed bill 2/3 which is quite a saving for me."

"Back in 1945 I felt that we needed technical help in solving our soil erosion problems, so I asked for help in organizing the Hancock Soil Conservation District and am proud of my part in the District work. We have good soil in the county and if properly used we would see greater improvements in the county. Let us lead people to look forward to growing better pastures and protecting our woods from fire, then we will have better communities in which to live," Alfred E. Smith, said.

Your chairman, in traveling over the county, can see great improvement everywhere. More farmers are putting grass where grass should grow and putting their row crops on land best adapted to row crops. With improved grazing we are getting improved dairy and beef herds which is making a more prosperous county. Let us all work together to get more conservation on the ground which will benefit the entire county.

With the progress that has been made we realize that much more is needed so we plan to stress our educational program in the coming years, make new plans on 30 farms, establish improved pastures on 600 acres including, clipping, fertilizing and mineralizing and seeding to improved pasture plants and to establish improved woodland practices on 2,000 acres of woodland. We are looking forward to a better county as more Soil Conservation is put on our soil.

Mrs. C. C. McDonald Addresses Girl Scouts

Mrs. C. C. McDonald was guest speaker at the meeting of the Live Oak Girl Scout Council, which embraces all girl scout troops on the coast, held at Long Beach on Thursday night of last week.

Mrs. McDonald, chairman International Relations P-T. A., spoke on World Friendship and brought out fine points of the value of understanding each other before forming opinions. "International relations," Mrs. McDonald said, "is to know and appreciate each other." She told the group of her visit to the United Nations and said that the General Assembly has the responsibility of Peace.

Mrs. R. M. Shearer who presided at the meeting, welcomed the visitors and introduced Mrs. McDonald. The invocation was given by Rev. T. J. Wharton and the meeting closed with the Scout pledge.

Reports were heard from all committee chairmen.

The council meeting was held in the Girl Scout Hut which is the work of the Long Beach troop. They purchased the lot and were responsible for the building.

The girls made and served hot coffee and scout cookies.

Interest In Legion Awards Mounts

Local interest in The American Legion School Awards Program has mounted to an all time high, according to Fred E. Fayard Sr., of the Clement R. Bontemps Post No. 139, The American Legion, located here.

He disclosed that in schools within the community and surrounding areas both a boy and girl in each school will become recipients of the coveted medals given on a basis of character, service, courage, leadership, companionship, honor, and scholarship. Winners achieve the distinction of the awards through selection by classmates and teachers.

With each bronze medal goes an engraved certificate suitable for framing which attests to the award. Winners are usually selected from among graduates of the eighth grade.

For participation in this valuable citizenship program, the Mississippi Department of the Legion received the national School Awards Trophy for 1950.

Legionnaires of the local Post are working closely with Superintendents of local schools here. It was inferred that a joint announcement of presentation dates in each school would be forthcoming soon.

Wrong Powder For Hunting

Seldom see Jackson the forest ranger—or ex-forest ranger—around any more. He's retired now, on a pension.

Ran into him, though, over at Harpersburg, yesterday. Still hale and hearty—doesn't look half his age. He makes extra money guiding campers and hunting parties. Told me about something that happened on his last trip.

"We lost our way, back of Ten Mile River," he says. "And when I reached for my compass to check up, I found I'd brought the wife's compact by mistake! I used the sun to find the river, and we finally got out—no real danger, but sure felt like a greenhorn."

From where I sit, this points out the necessity of checking and double-checking. Like the precautions taken by the Self-Regulation Program, the Browning Industry sponsors. Retailers selling beer volunteer under this program to keep their places clean and trouble-free, so the business will always be "out in the clear."

Logging It On TV

By JAY METZ

There are always two ways to handle any column. One is to sit back and pat people on the back for what they are doing; the other is to offer criticism when one thinks that, by offering it, it will result in corrective measures to improve whatever we may be involved in. I have tried to handle this column in the above manner. All of us who are TV addicts gripe here and there about something we see and hear, and accept as logical those things that please us. I think, so far, my general tendency has been to criticize. Please believe me when I say that I enjoy watching TV very much. But I find that, writing a column just once a week, the critical items outnumber the orchids by a large majority.

So saying, I will now get down off my soap box and offer a couple of criticisms. First I would like to discuss the way some short fifteen minute local programs are handled. Take Porters, for instance, at 6:15 p.m. each evening, with the news. First we get a mention of Porters, then a short flash and word from Frank Gilkerson, then more of Porters, then the Yank and the News, and then back to Porters. Dixie Beer does the same thing but imposes their pipe-cleaner puppets more frequently throughout their ten minute spread. My suggestion: put on your commercial first, then give us what we want to hear and see, and then close with a commercial. Don't chop the whole deal into chunks, please.

Ed Brooks, in a couple of his recent columns, has been championing the cause of Jerry Lester and his 11 p.m. Broadway Open House program. He is trying to stir up enough enthusiasm among local adherents to convince WDSU-TV that this show should be shown earlier in the evening. Brooks talked in such glowing terms about this program that I had to stay up late one night to watch it again. A couple of months ago I tried to get something out of this thirty minute rat race but finally gave up. So after Brooks' comment on how hilarious it was I tried again. A couple of nights. All I'm saying is that TV keeps their wits out there and either holds Lester at his present hour or else gives him still later. Lester and many stooges laugh hilariously almost each and every remark at any of them make, just like I and I would do if we had a ret joke, between us. They like a continual barrage of senseless chatter, and practically knock each other down laughing, but get no encouragement from the audience. Nor from me.

Nor from me. The primary purpose of any radio or television station is to provide up-to-the minute news. WDSU-TV did that very handsomely when they telecast Senate Crime Investigation hearings last Friday. They gave a liberal education in politics the raw, so to speak. We stayed at the hearing right to the bitter end and got humor, drama, suspense, current events, and entertainment all wrapped up in one. We watched, with great interest and amusement, some guesses and their counsel person little gestures which reveal their nervousness. The most interesting thing was to see so-called enforcement officers take the time to "tell the truth" only to right in weaving a web of complete falsification, report their complete disregard for enforcing law, feign complete ignorance of anything within their jurisdiction.

Sgt. Louis M. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jones of Hancock County, is shown after he took his oath to serve in the U. S. Army. He is the 10,000th man to join the regular army through the Fort Hood recruiting office since it opened September 18, 1945. He is a member of Headquarters Company Combat Command "A" and has been at Hood two and a half years. Mrs. Jones lives in Temple, Texas.

tion, and otherwise profess to know not how they lived so well on so "little". It was the best evening's entertainment we have had in a long time, and most educational and enlightening, too. TV sets, fortunately, are equipped only to produce sight and sound. We are glad for if we had a third sense - smell - we could have smelled crime and corruption. As it was, the odor still almost reached us. Incidentally Mel Leavitt did a fine job with his commentary. His summation at the close of the hearings, and off the cuff, was superior. I hope Mel is under a long term contract, for we all like him.

R. R. Williams, Amite County Sheriff Asks Place On Highway Commission

R. R. Williams, sheriff of Amite County, today announced his candidacy for the post of Highway Commissioner from the Second (Southern) Mississippi District in the Democratic Party primaries of August, 1951.

The 31-year old sheriff, one of the better known of the younger holders of public office in the state, said his ambition to be elected by district voters to the Highway Commission was held because of his desire to lead in giving his district the type of road and highway service its citizens need and deserve.

The young Air Force veteran of World War II said he hoped to make a complete canvass of the 30 counties of the district before the August election date.

Makes Statement

"If I fail to see any voter in the district between now and election day," Mr. Williams said, "I would like to ask him or her to check my record as a citizen, a holder of public office and a trustworthy official by asking me."

The candidate for the Highway Commission post is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon D. Williams of Gillsburg in Amite County. He attended Gillsburg public school, Southwest Mississippi Junior College at Summit, and the University of Tennessee.

Won 9-Man Race

After his World War II service period ended, he entered private business as a lumberman and farmer near Gillsburg, then was elected sheriff in a memorable 9-candidate race in 1947.

Mrs. Williams is the former Miss Martha Jean Alcorn of Fort Worth, Texas and Reginald Roy Jr., 2 years old, completes the family circle. The Williamses are Baptist. They have made their home in Liberty since he became sheriff of Amite County in 1948.

HOME AGENT'S NOTES

MAKE FAMILY FOOD PLAN NOW

By MISS MADGE ALLRED

PLAN FOOD PRODUCTION

Rural families will be wise to produce and store more of their own food this year, since prices are high and there may be a shortage of some foods which should be in everyone's diet.

Right now is the time to make a family food plan. This plan will help determine the size of the vegetable garden and of the home poultry flock.

Use as a guide the "Basic Seven" food groups, which show the proper variety and balance of foods for good nutrition.

The whole plan will include fresh vegetables which can be harvested from the home garden much of the year in Mississippi. Fruits, milk, butter, eggs, cereals and other foods. Part of this over-all plan is the food preservation plan for canning, freezing, curing or brining.

Food preservation figures vary according to size of servings, family eating habits in regard to canned food, length of growing season in different parts of the state, and other factors. In general, serve tomatoes or tomato juice 5 times per week, canned fruit daily, both green and yellow vegetables daily, and some kind of meat daily.

Work these figures in, with spring garden plans to get some idea how large the garden should be.

See the home demonstration agent for a list of recommended vegetables varieties, planting dates and other useful information.

HOUSE REMODELING

Most jobs are done better if there is a plan to follow, but this is especially true in remodeling a house.

However, before making a plan, be sure the house is sound. Thorough remodeling generally takes less material, but more labor, than new construction.

Check the house from foundation to roof. Maybe joists need replacing, or the chimney should be rebuilt. New roofing may be needed, or there may be leaks at other places which should be watertight.

Consider also the location of the house, including a good water supply, drainage, exposure to winter winds and easy access to the highway.

Having decided that it is worthwhile to remodel write down things to be done. Then make rough drawings.

It is wise to consider the house and entire farmstead together, putting on a farmstead plan of all buildings, walks, drives, trees and other improvements.

For the final house plan, take accurate measurements and draw each room at a scale of one-half inch to a foot. At the same scale cut out pieces of cardboard to represent all pieces of equipment and furniture, and move these around on the plans to try different arrangements.

The kitchen can be either "L" or "C" type. In the dining room, allow three feet or more between the table and the wall or furniture.

Bedrooms should be large enough to hold the necessary furniture, with room to move around easily and to make the bed. Try to leave at least 15 inches on the wall side of the bed and 24 inches at the foot.

Ask the home demonstration agent for advice in planning any room, also for publications about construction.

X-RAY NOW PROBES THE WOODS

The X-ray can now be used to find defects in logs and heavy timbers which are hidden from the naked eye by the bark and outer wood. Once the defects are located, the sawmill operator can thus use the log to best advantage.

Miss May Courge of Lakeshore is a medical patient at the Kings Daughters hospital.

Miss. Power Company Announces Huge Construction Budget For 1951

Directors of Mississippi Power Company have approved one of the largest construction budgets in the company's history, Mr. L. P. Sweatt, President of the Company, has announced. The budget calls for construction expenditures of approximately $6,000,000.

A big share of that amount will be for new generating facilities. Included in this will be the completion of the No. 1 Unit Plant Sweatt near Meridian. This will provide an additional 58,000 horsepower of generating capacity for Southeast Mississippi.

An indication of the business activity and development of the area is the plan to spend more than $1,000,000 for facilities to handle normal new business.

Additional transmission lines and substations will require about three quarters of a million dollars. About $700,000 will be spent for new distribution substations and feeder lines. The remainder of the budget will cover miscellaneous construction.

Completion of the first generating unit at Plant Sweatt, scheduled for April, will bring the company's generating capacity to approximately 150,000 horsepower. This represents an increase of 400 per cent since V-J Day.

As of December 31, the company was supplying service directly to 80,656 customers. It indirectly supplied the power needs of approximately 35,000 more customers.

COMMON SENSE FOR THE SMALL TOWN APPLIANCE BUYER

The records show that most of us small town folks kinda buy our appliances accordin' to the following rules. First buy a well-known brand. Most folks find that the big name brand got big over a period of years by giving quality merchandise for value received. Those that didn't might have gotten big, but they didn't stay that way very long.

Secondly, buy from a reputable local dealer. When a dealer has been in business around the town for fifty years or more, then it is not very likely that he's the kind to go back on his word, or fail to back up his merchandise with prompt service calls. If he didn't do these things, he too, just like the manufacturer, would have fallen by the wayside.

Thirdly, DO THIS BEFORE YOU BUY, - ask your neighbor and friends who own the type of appliance you want, how they like the machine that they have. Nothing has helped spread the quality name of Westinghouse as much as the satisfied customers who have told their friends and neighbors about the pleasure of owning a Westinghouse appliance.

We think you will agree that our firm meets the above requirements pretty well. We carry Westinghouse as one of the world's biggest names in electric appliances. Our other products are equally well known in their fields. Our firm has been established since 1896. And our first appliances sales would probably be the parlor heaters we used to sell back in the early 1900's. Then as now, our firm policy has been to sell the best appliances so that a minimum of service will be necessary. Service appliances promptly when they do need service. We believe this policy will continue to pay off in the future. When you are in the market for appliances, let us show you our line.

We proudly announce
OUR
"TWINS"
win top award

We're proud that our Westinghouse Laundromat and Clothes Dryer have received this citation. But we're even prouder of all the warm enthusiasm with which women in our town praise our "Twins" for outstanding performance in their homes . . . in saving work, clothes, time and money.

Proved in the homes of America. Proved by America's industrial engineers. Now you can be doubly sure you are buying the best when you choose the famous Westinghouse "Twins". Come in and see a demonstration.

LOGTOWN NEWS

By Jay Metz

The Big Freeze of 1951 has come and gone—we hope—but before it departed it left in its wake a path of destruction, devastation and discomfort. Familiar sights around the various households were of people wrapping outdoor pipe, defrosting their cars, cutting, sawing and hauling wood to their houses, and otherwise trying to keep warm and to launch a counterattack against the rapidly falling temperature. Thursday night wasn't too bad on most of us. We all had a few frozen pipes, stalled cars, and houses too cold. But Friday night's north wind and close-to-zero temperature took its toll.

Some things we heard about or saw: Broken pipes at the Browns, who were in New Orleans and unable to do anything about it. The Baters with an overheated car with Bobby receiving burns on hands and face. Miss Lolly piling on more wood to try to keep the post office warm. Shirley Fountain trying to bring a dead battery to life. Elliott Casanova trying to remedy the damage of a cracked block in his truck. Colonel Metzler trying to realize the damages to his Buick. It with a cracked block, too. Visitors at the Bristows, down from New York to escape the cold, trying to get warm. Cap DeBoer repairing his water heater. A family which had to leave their home for a warmer place when their gas line froze. So few children showing up for school Friday that school had to be dismissed—teachers almost outnumbered the pupils. People helping other people. A man carrying water to his chickens a quarter mile away. Another man removing solid blocks of ice from his chickens' water pails and refilling them from a bath tub faucet, the only running faucet in the house. Old blankets and quilts of all colors and descriptions wrapped around favored and prized plants and bushes. Vegetation looking like it had been scalded. Kitchen faucets being forced off their moorings from the expanding ice in the pipes. People with kettles of boiling water trying to thaw out pipes in order to make the water-carrying detail easier. A beautiful ice formation resulting from the spray of the fountain opposite the Baxters. People saying that this was the coldest spell they had experienced here in the last sixty years. But mainly, it was a story of people helping other people. It is a good place in which to live, even if it gets cold once in a while.

OUR DECISIONS ARE MADE RIGHT HERE !!

Our board of directors meets regularly and runs our system. You may know some of these directors. Elected by our members, they all live in our community.

When some folks out in the country want electricity, these directors pay experts to develop plans to serve those folks. They then apply for a loan from the Rural Electrification Administration. If the plans look sound enough to make REA believe we can repay the money with interest, the loan will be made.

REA's relationship from then on is the same as that of a bank with a farm that has a mortgage. So long as we run our system efficiently and do not endanger the loan, there are no strings from Washington.

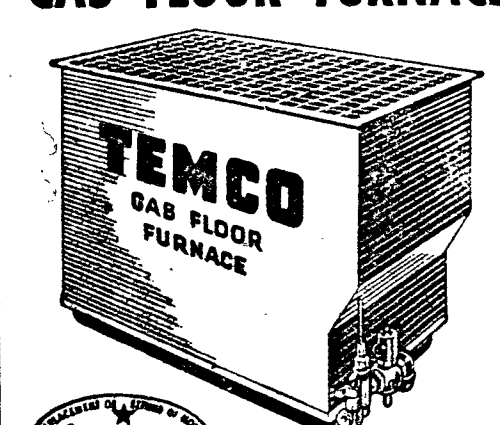

We do a local business for the benefit of local farmers. We buy from local firms, do business with local banks and hire local people. If Washington is controlling our board of directors, somebody better tell our directors. Like the rest of us around here, they are feeling right independent.
